

The text from our skit is real.

F FasTrak

You have an unpaid toll balance of $4.15. Pay by today to avoid a $50 late fee: fastrak-tollpay.com

The text from our skit is real.

F FasTrak

You have an unpaid toll balance of $4.15. Pay by today to avoid a $50 late fee: fastrak-tollpay.com

FBI warning, April 2024

2,000+

complaints about fake toll texts in about one month

Text is the #1 way scammers reach people.

USPS

Your package is on hold. Confirm your address: usps-help.co

Bank Alert

Did you try a $892 purchase?
Reply YES or NO

E-ZPass

Unpaid toll of $6.99. Pay today to avoid fees

Unknown

Hi! Is this Emma? We met at the park last week

Job Offer

Earn $500 a day liking videos. Text me to start!

Game Team

You won 10,000 free coins! Claim in 10 minutes

Amazon

Your account is locked. Verify now: amzn-secure.net

Netflix

Payment failed. Update now to keep watching

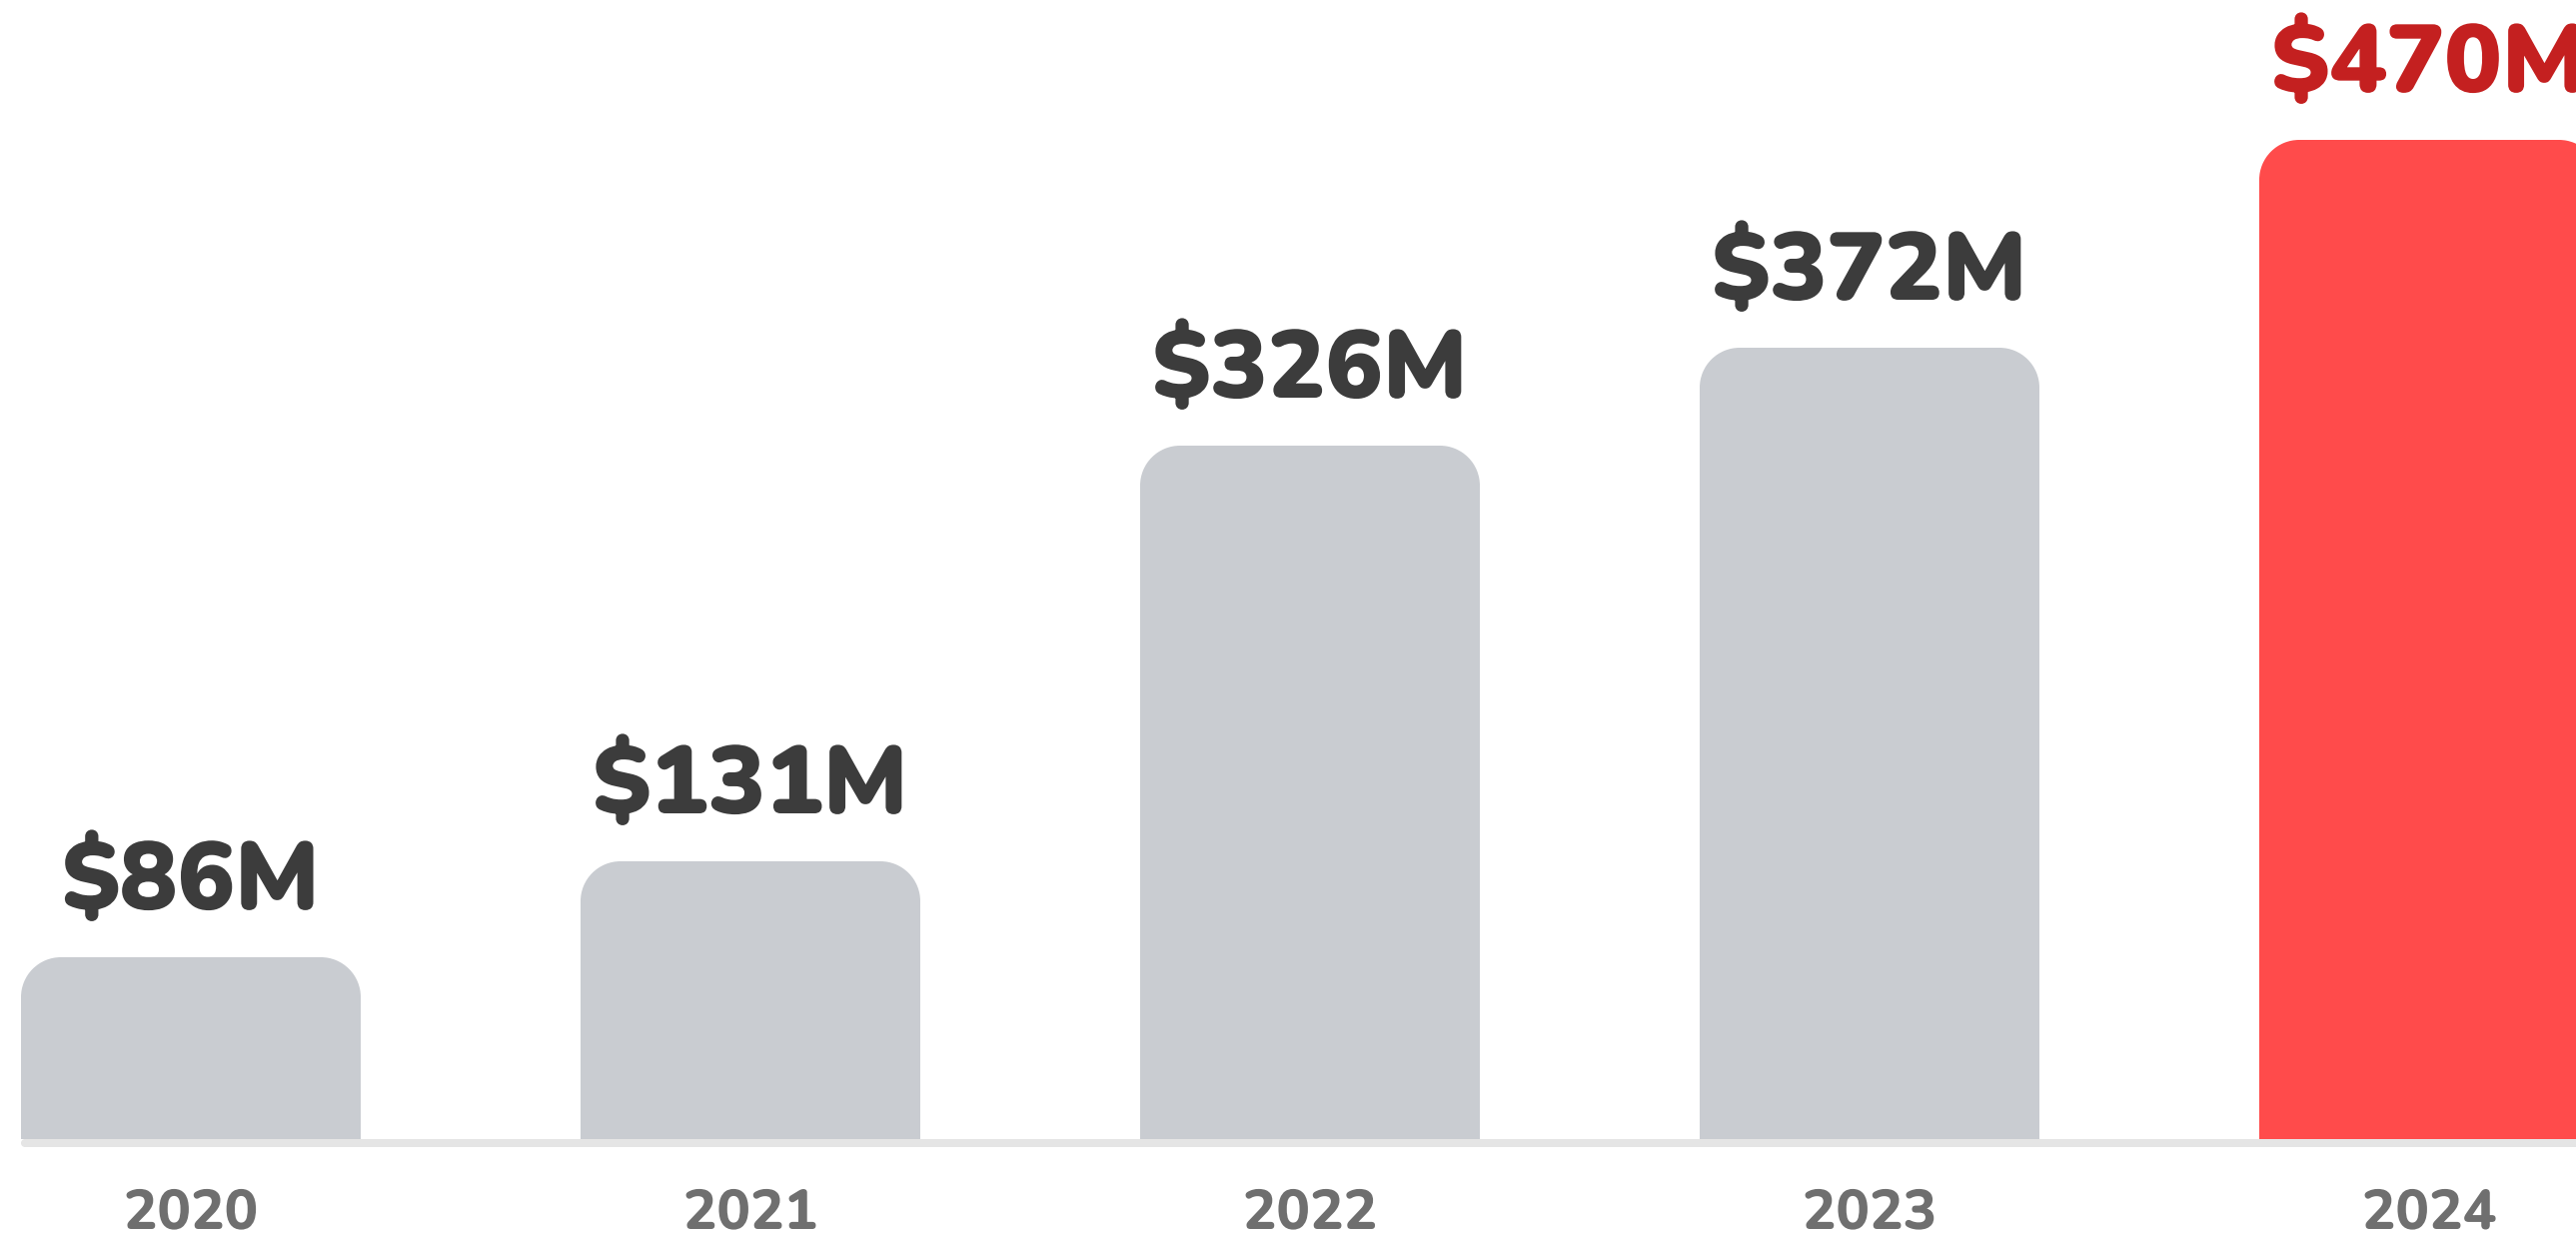

Prize Desk

Congrats! You won a $1,000 gift card

61%

of U.S. adults get a scam text at least once a week

Text scam losses grew more than 5x in four years.

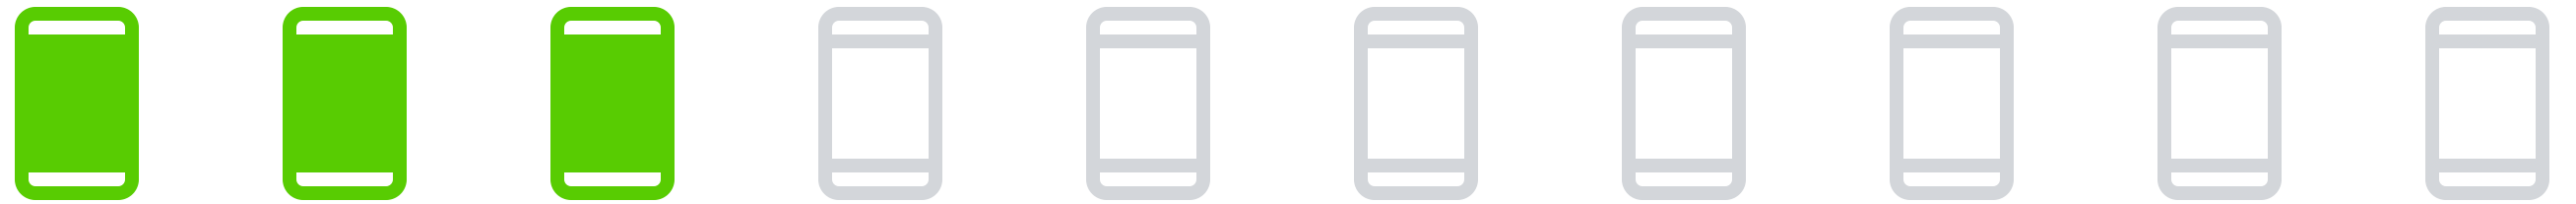

Reported losses only. The FTC says most fraud is never reported. Source: FTC Consumer Sentinel Data Books, 2020–2024 (reported losses)

Kids get their own phones in elementary school.

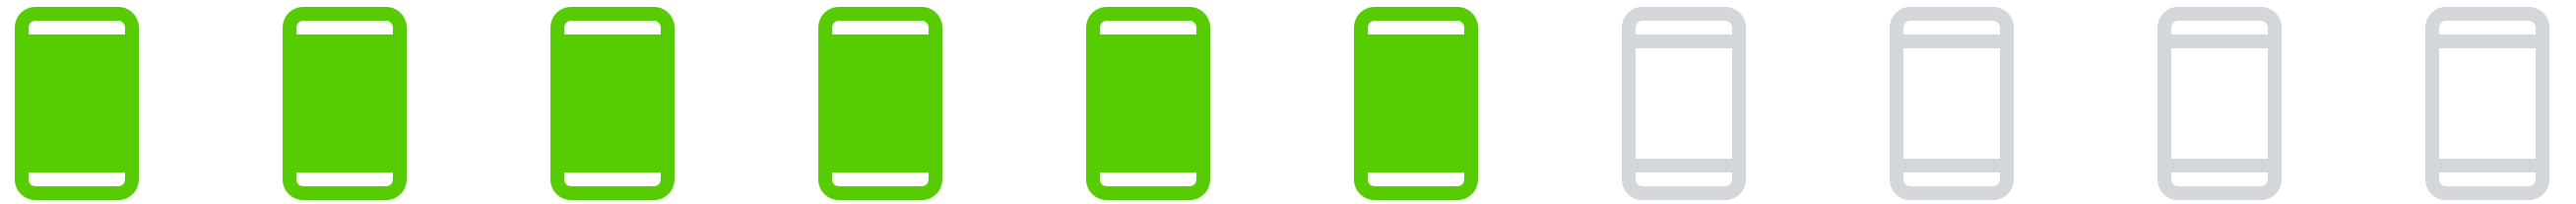

29%

Ages 8–10

57%

Ages 11–12

Young people are the most likely to lose money to fraud.

51%

of fraud reports from people 19
and under involved losing money

21%

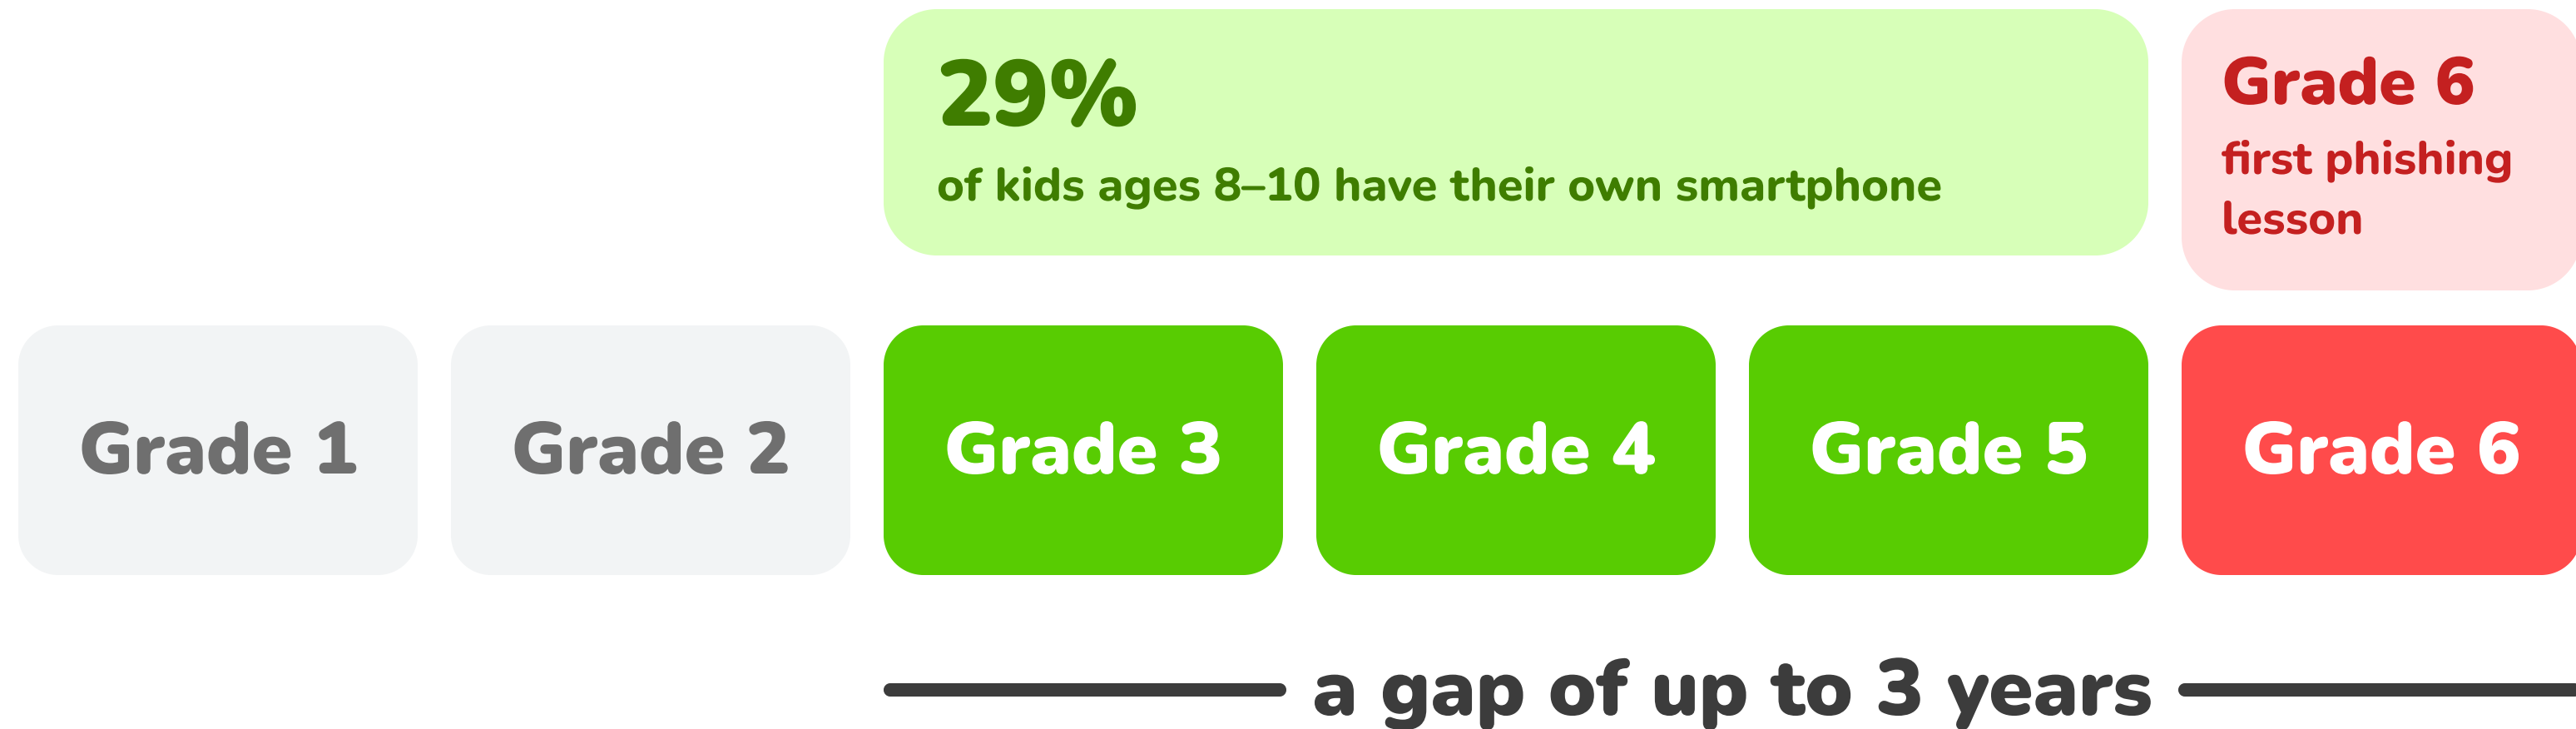

for people 80 and over

AI writes scam texts without typos.

F FasTrak

You have an unpaid toll balance of $4.15. Pay by today to avoid a $50 late fee: fastrak-tollpay.com

Kids get phones years before their first scam lesson.

Ages 8–10 are roughly grades 3–5. Source: Pew Research Center, October 8, 2025 (3,054 parents); Common Sense Education, “Don’t Feed the Phish” (Grade 6)

Pawnzy's lesson teaches kids before they need it.

F

FasTrak

Pretend

You have an unpaid toll balance of $4.15.

Problem

Pay by today to avoid a $50 late fee:

Pressure

fastrak-tollpay.com

Pay

The same red flags the FTC tells parents to teach.

F FasTrak Pretend

You have an unpaid toll balance of $4.15. Problem Pay by today to avoid a $50 late fee: Pressure
fastrak-tollpay.com Pay

Pretend

says it's someone you trust

Problem

says something is wrong

Pressure

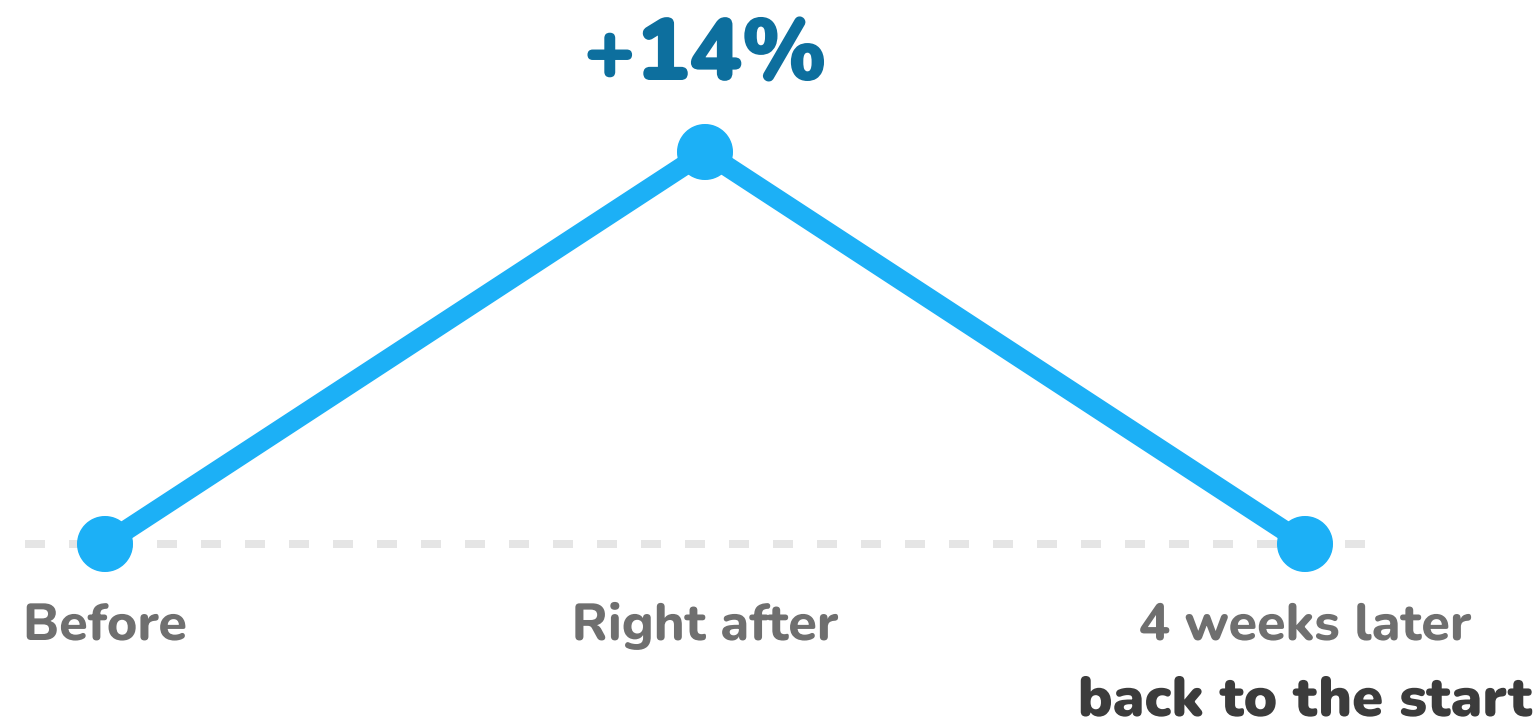

rushes you

Pay

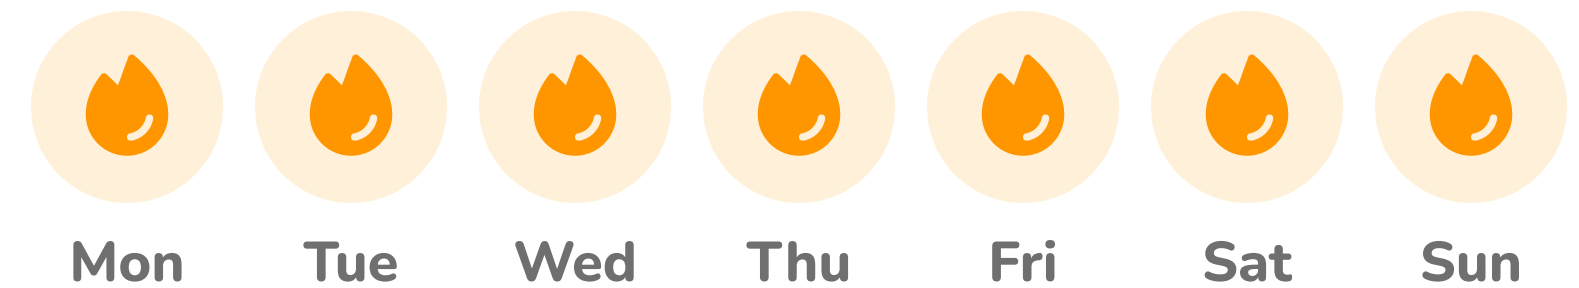

asks for money a weird way

One lesson fades. A daily habit keeps coming back.

Kids' phishing test scores after one lesson

Duolingo brings kids back every day

7-day streak

Play Pawnzy's lesson

Scan the code, then try to beat the boss question.

appiest.github.io/duolingo-if/

